

Dear Dr. Chung,

Invitation to Harvard College in Asia Program - Hong Kong Spring Conference 2015

On behalf of Harvard College in Asia Program - Hong Kong Delegation, I am honoured to extend a warm invitation to you to be our honourable guest in our Hong Kong Spring Conference to be held on March 2015.

Launched in 2003, the Harvard College in Asia Program (HCAP) is initiated by students of Harvard University and aims at bridging the gap of understanding between students from Harvard and Asian universities. Each year, two conferences are held under the same theme: one at Harvard College, and another at each partner university. A group of eight undergraduates from different faculties in the University of Hong Kong joined the Harvard Conference in January 2015. Hong Kong Spring Conference in March is organised by these delegates and are attended by eight students from Harvard University. The majority of events is also open to students from the University of Hong Kong, with about 50-70 target participants in total.

This year, Hong Kong Spring Conference 2015 has a theme of Technology and our Generation: From the Individual to the World. Technology is woven into the lives of 7 billion people on this planet. On the individual level, technology influences the choices we make everyday — how we relate to other people, how we spend our time and money, how we learn about the world, and what we hope to accomplish in our lives. We seek to explore how technology relates to each of us. With increased awareness, we aim to work together using technology to solve challenges that confront our generation.

The proposed details regarding Hong Kong Spring Conference 2015 are as follows:

Period: 16 March 2015 (Monday) – 20 March 2015 (Friday)

Time: 11:00 a.m. - 06:00 p.m.
